Reporting Abuse and Neglect
1. Who is a professional for reporting purposes?	An individual, including a teacher or nurse, who is licensed or certified by the state and has direct contact with students in the normal course of duties for which the individual is licensed or certified.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(b).	DFPS When and How to Report Child Abuse

Question	Short Answer	Citations	Other Resources
2. Who else has a duty to report?	Everyone. Every person, including every school employee, volunteer, contractor, parent, and attorney.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(a)-(b).
3. What triggers a report?	For all, having reasonable cause to believe a child has been adversely affected by abuse or neglect. For professionals, having reasonable cause to believe a child has or may be abused, neglected, or may have been a victim of indecency with a child.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(a)-(b).  TASB Policy FFG(LEGAL).	DFPS Recognize the Signs of Child Abuse
4. How is a report made?	Reports may be made by phone or online. Call 911 or local law enforcement if the situation is an emergency.		By Phone: 800-252-5400  Online: Texas Abuse Hotline
5. How quickly must a report be made?	Immediately. A professional must file the report within 48 hours after the professional first has reasonable cause to believe that the child has been abused, neglected, or was a victim of indecency with a child.  District policy cannot require an employee to report first to a district administrator before reporting to DFPS or law enforcement.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(a)-(b).  19 Tex. Admin. Code § 61.1051(b)(5).

9. When is it mandatory to report suspected indecency with a child?	Professionals must report when they have reasonable cause to believe that a child is a victim of the offense of indecency with a child and the child has been abused.	Tex. Penal Code § 21.11.  Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(a).
10. Can one person report on behalf of the school?	No. A professional may not delegate or rely on another person to make a report. Each professional school employee who suspects abuse or neglect must make a report.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.101(b).
11. Should a report be made to DFPS, law enforcement, or both?	Generally, a person can submit a required report of suspected abuse or neglect to either law enforcement or to DFPS. But if the report involves suspected abuse or neglect by an individual responsible for the care, custody or welfare of the child, such as a parent or a teacher, then the report must always be made to DFPS. Often, school district employees choose to report to both agencies to ensure a swift response. DFPS and law enforcement have mutual obligations to inform each other immediately about reports of	Tex. 12. Does a report to a school district peace officer satisfy the requirement?	No, if the report involves the abuse or neglect of a child by an individual responsible for the care, custody, or welfare of the child it must be reported to DFPS.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.103(c).
13. How should a school employee report child trafficking?	As with abuse and neglect, educators must report suspected trafficking of a child within 48 hours. Reports involving the trafficking of a child must be made to local or state law enforcement and DFPS. For purposes of human trafficking reporting, local law enforcement does not include a school district's police department.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.001(1)	TEA's To the Administrator Addressed, Child Abuse and Neglect, including Human Trafficking, Prevention and Awareness Reminders and Requirement
14. Should school employees report peer harassment, abuse, or bullying?	Not to DFPS. DFPS investigates only individuals with responsibility for a child's care, custody, or welfare. Unless a parent, caregiver, or school employee is causing or permitting the abuse, the issue will be referred to law enforcement.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.001(5).
15. In the absence of an allegation that a child was a victim of abuse or neglect by someone with responsibility for the child's care, custody,	Depending on the age of the child, a crime may have been committed or there may be a presumption of inadequate supervision of the child by the child's parent or caretaker. 17. Should school employees report a child’s truancy or apparent lack of parental supervision?	The following, in and of themselves, are not cause for a report: truancy; running away from home; juvenile conduct indicating a need for supervision; school-age children unattended for a portion of the day (“latchkey kids”); and children who cause harm to self or others. Nevertheless, a report should be made if surrounding circumstances indicate possible abuse or neglect.	40 Tex. Admin. Code § 707.483.
18. When should school employees report incidents of excessive force in physical discipline or improper restraint or seclusion at school?	Not every incident of excessive force or improper restraint or seclusion rises to the level of child abuse. Abuse and neglect share the same meaning in both school and family investigations. Abuse and neglect in a school setting do not include use of restraints or seclusion, actions believed to be immediately necessary to prevent imminent harm to the child or others, or reasonable discipline (even if the use of force,	40 Tex. Admin. Code § 707.607.

	seclusion, or restraint might be considered improper by educational standards) if the actions do not meet the legal definitions of abuse or neglect.
19. If a district receives a complaint, tip, or other information alleging abuse by a school employee, should the district confront the school employee before making a report?	As described below, DFPS and law enforcement strongly discourage notifying alleged perpetrators before DFPS can commence an investigation due to the high risk that valuable evidence (such as text messages, emails, etc.) will be destroyed before the investigation begins.	Tex. Fam. Code §§ 261.303, .406.  40 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 707.615, .619.
20. Is a reporter’s identity confidential?	Yes, the identity of a reporter is confidential and is redacted from all records shared outside of DFPS or law enforcement. In addition, reporters have whistleblower protection and immunity from legal claims arising out of the report.	Tex. Fam. Code §§ 261.101(d), .106, .110, .201.
Child Abuse Investigations
1. When will a report be treated as a school investigation?	A report will be treated as a school investigation when the allegations would meet the legal definition of abuse or neglect, the alleged perpetrator meets the definition of school personnel or volunteer , the alleged victim was a child at the time, the abuse occurred in	40 Tex. Admin. Code § 707.609 (referencing definitions in 40 Tex. Admin. Code § 707.607).

4. Should an employee accused of abuse be suspended from duties?	Depending on the circumstances, it may be appropriate to place an individual on administrative leave pending an investigation or otherwise take steps to separate the accused from children in the school setting. The timing of this leave should take into consideration the need for secrecy, if any, regarding the launch of a DFPS investigation.
5. How soon will a DFPS investigator respond to a report of abuse or neglect?	DFPS is required to respond within 24 hours to priority one reports (defined as reports involving an immediate risk of death or serious harm) and within 72 hours to priority two reports (all other reports). 12. What can district employees tell a child’s parents about a DFPS investigation involving the child?	School district employees should not release information to parents about ongoing investigations. After a child abuse investigation is complete, parents may seek information directly from DFPS.	Tex. Fam. Code § 261.406.
13. Does a school district have an obligation to complete its own investigation of alleged abuse of a student by a school employee? How should a district coordinate with DFPS and law enforcement?	Both state and federal law suggest that when a school employee is accused of abusing a student a school district should not rely solely on investigations by other entities but should conduct its own investigation. For the reasons explained herein, however, the district must carefully avoid interfering with a law enforcement or DFPS investigation. School employees should consult closely with legal counsel regarding this matter.
14. Will information about a DFPS investigation be shared during SBEC proceedings?	Yes, in a contested case related to SBEC or other licensure, either party may request information for the administrative proceeding.  In addition, SBEC will receive or can	Tex. Fam. Alternative or Temporary Care Arrangements
1. Are all students living with relatives or other caregivers considered to be in foster care?	No, often a student living in a household without a parent is doing so through an informal arrangement, without formal documentation. (See power of attorney, below.) In addition, after completing an investigation, DFPS may permit temporary placement with extended family while changes are made to the home environment to avoid removal (See PCSP, below.) These arrangements are not considered foster care. If, however, a child is removed from home by DFPS under a court order and placed with a relative in Kinship Care, this is considered foster care, and the student will have a DFPS Placement Authorization Form 2085 (see below).
2. What is a Parental Child Safety Placement (PCSP) agreement?	A PCSP agreement is when DFPS and a parent agree on a short-term, out-of-home placement for a child because CPS	Tex. Fam. Code ch. 264, subch. L.	DFPS Parent Child Safety Placement Guide

The purpose of a PCSP is to keep the child safe until the child can safely return to the parent. If a child is in a PCSP pursuant to a DFPS investigation, the parties may enter into an authorization agreement for a nonparent relative to allow the caregiver to make certain decisions on behalf of the child. The agreement gives the nonparent relative temporary authority to authorize medical care, enroll the child in school, and agree to extracurricular activities.	Tex. Fam. Code § 34.002.
3. How should school employees respond if parents appear to be violating the terms of a PCSP?	School employees should give parents full rights and privileges, regardless of a PCSP agreement. A PCSP is voluntary by all parties, and parents can revoke at any time. Under the agreement, parents retain full parental rights.	Tex. Fam. Code §§ 34.003(b)(6), .007.
4. What is Kinship Care?	Kinship Care is substitute care by a family member or fictive kin (nonrelatives with whom the child has a close, long-term relationship) after DFPS removes a child from his or her home. 5. How should school employees respond if parents appear to be violating a court order regarding Foster Care or Kinship Care?	Call the child’s DFPS caseworker (or law enforcement for emergency response).
6. For students living with friends or extended family without a formal arrangement, can a school district require a power of attorney?	A school district may request a power of attorney, but a student who is residing in the district is likely to be eligible for admission regardless. A student who is not homeless, but is living separate from a parent or guardian, can be denied admission only if the district determines that the student is present for the purpose of extracurriculars or has had certain recent disciplinary issues.	Tex. Educ. Code § 25.001(b)(4), (b)(5), (d).  TASB Policy FD(LEGAL).
7. Is a student living with a relative or friend considered homeless?	Possibly. The answer depends on complicated factors such as the duration of the student’s expected stay at this location and the availability of a safe option to return home for the student.	Tex. Educ. Foster Care
1. How does a school district know who is in foster care?	The individual who enrolls the student should present DFPS Placement Authorization Form 2085 or a court order naming DFPS the child’s managing conservator. Upon receipt of this form, the student should be reported in PEIMS as being in foster care. Form 2085 is also the appropriate documentation for automatically enrolling the student in the Free and Reduced Lunch program.	Tex. 7. What should a district do to assist a student in foster care with the transition to a new school?	Students in foster care often experience disruption in their education and home lives. Districts can help by having systems in place to facilitate transitions. Additionally, state and federal law require districts to take certain steps to ease transitions. For example, the Texas Administrative Code requires districts to include provisions regarding the transfer of student records, the development of systems, the award of credit, placement in programs and courses, access to extracurricular activities, and more.	19 Tex. 12. Who can see the education records of a student in foster care?	The child’s education decision maker and case worker certainly have access to the child’s education records. Others may also have access when named by a court, including the child’s attorney, residential treatment center, biological parent, or court appointed special advocate (CASA).	20 U.S.C. § 1232g(b)(2)(B).	FERPA Uninterrupted Scholars Act  Federal guidance
13. Who should serve as the “parent” for purposes of special education?	If known, DFPS will include the name of any surrogate parent the school or the court has named to make special education decisions on the Form 2085 E. If one is not already named, the school district must appoint a surrogate parent if the student is eligible for special education services. State law expresses a preference for the foster parent to	20 U.S.C. § 1415(b)(2)(A)(i).  34 C.F.R. § 300.30(b).  Tex. Fam. 14. Why are students in foster care away from school so often?	While case workers and foster parents are encouraged to minimize disruptions to the school day, children in foster care often attend not only court hearings, but also visitation, court-mandated therapy, and other services that are exclusively available during school hours. These are considered excused absences.	Tex. Educ. Code § 25.087(b)(1)(F).	Chapter 10
15. How does ESSA address accountability for the academic performance of students in foster care?	The state report card required by federal accountability laws must include a clear and concise description of aggregated and disaggregated data regarding student achievement on academic assessments and high school graduation rates for students in foster care.	20 U.S.C. § 6311(h)(1)(C)(ii), (C)(iii)(II).
